American Rescue Plan Act Committee (ARPC) Mission Statement

"The ARPC will develop and recommend a strategy to the Board of Selectmen for the allocation of ARP funds that benefits the Old Lyme community, which has been impacted by the COVID pandemic.

The Committee will strive to operate in a transparent and objective manner and consider input from the community at large. The group's goal is that their recommendation for fund deployment will, when carried out, maximize benefits for those living and working in Old Lyme. The ARPC will provide regular updates to the Board of Selectmen and Board of Finance with a goal of submitting final recommendations prior to June 30, 2022."

Inflation, Job and Business Losses, Other Costs Make Household Financial Positions Concerning

“Inflation is cutting into my real income.”

“I am a renter in town and concerned that my rent will increase while my salary stays stagnant.”

...

“Sewer project will likely cause me to sell and relocate somewhere more affordable.”

...

“Plant [where employed] will be closing in 2022 due to loss of business from the pandemic.”

...

“We did not lose our jobs, thankfully, but we’ve had to sacrifice hours and pay to accommodate childcare and remote learning needs. We’ve experienced many increased costs and have juggled to keep it together and not sink into substantial debt.”

Isolation from Family, Friends, and One's Support System was a Key Stress Factor during the Pandemic

- ▶ A reduction in family income, remote learning balanced with remote work, and being unable to participate in physical activities previously enjoyed increased household stress.
- ▶ Hiking Trails were accessed more often than pre-pandemic, yet other “Town assets” such as art galleries, religious organizations, restaurants, and other local businesses were utilized less frequently, as might be expected.
- ▶ Most respondents said they did not feel healthier with either reduced food choices or activity at home.

A “Silver Lining” for Respondents was more time with household members and a slowdown of activities and expectations.

Although most respondents did not feel the need to seek out Mental Health Services, some are finding they do not have the available time or financial resources to pursue mental health counseling for themselves or a family member.

“... mental health is so important and needs to be addressed and more accessible to the adults and children in our community. My daughter had struggled tremendously, and I have spent 10 months trying to get her a psychiatrist to help her through this difficult time... her whole world has been turned upside down.”

“...I work closely with our Old Lyme community ...some may not even express it directly, but the mental health of a lot of my [customer base] has drastically changed...”

Business & Non-Profit Survey Section

Those who lead or own a business or non-profit business in Old Lyme.

In this section of the survey:

More than half of respondents were sole-proprietors or home business owners.

Roughly a third were businesses employing staff.

Adaptability was Key During the Pandemic

- ▶ 78% of Non-Profits felt they needed to pivot to provide services or assistance to Old Lyme residents in a way they had not prior to the pandemic.
- ▶ About half of business owners had to change how they offered products or services due to the pandemic
- ▶ Roughly a quarter had to add remote work options, while 40% found the nature of their work did not allow for remote workers.
- ▶ At the time of the survey (December 2021) 12% found employees still not willing or able to return to the workplace.
- ▶ At the time of the survey, about 30% were still having staff instability and other staffing issues.

About a Quarter have Recovered from a Rough Patch and 20 percent are not yet Financially Sound.

“I incurred expenses significant to my income; however I did not apply for loans as I was concerned about my ability to repay them.”

“Redoing my basement to prepare to move our location.”

...

“Wish there were much more recognition of the stress of small business owners, many of which lost their life's work. Many employees came out ahead financially, so the sympathy for the minority represented by business owners affected by mandated shutdowns while large stores have not been shut has just not been there.”

...

“As a self-owned small business, we stayed afloat with CT’s enhanced Unemployment Benefits in 2021. Those are gone in 2022, our business has not recovered fully.”

About 25% are currently seeking or planning to seek additional help.
